

Graduates Urged to Avoid "Waste of Potential"

Juniata's latest graduating class, the first to matriculate all four years within the College's heralded new curriculum, was urged upon its commencement this month to use the freedom and the tools of its learning to avoid "a waste of human potential" much like the waste of America's energy resources.

The urging came from Dr. Mary Patterson McPherson, dean of the college at Bryn Mawr College, in her June 1 commencement address.

"Never has the world in its interdependence needed its young to be more involved," asserted Dr. McPherson, who also received the honorary doctor of laws degree. She expressed strong hopes that Juniata's class, facing "a time of trouble in the world and a time of fundamental change," might "profoundly affect, from positions of responsibility, the future of this land."

A total of 223 students were awarded the bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees at the Sunday afternoon exercises, which marked the official beginning of the College's 100th anniversary year. An additional 31 students were recognized as candidates for August graduation.

Five students received their degrees summa cum laude: Sharon E. Chilcote-Doner, Lutherville, Md.; Denise E. Hartman, York; Jayne A. Keirn, Altoona; Miriam R. Smith, Martinsburg; and Richard B. Taddonio, Wallingford. In addition, 11 students received their degrees magna cum laude, while 14 students received cum laude degrees.

According to Dr. McPherson, whose address was entitled "Equal Is As Equal Does" and capped a year at Juniata devoted to the theme of "Woman," the graduating class will enter a world "much smaller" than that which challenged the class of just 10 years ago.

Facing the problems and realities of international interdependence, of both inflation and caring for the world's people, the young must learn, she said, "to work things through" in a new context, a context not of limitless possibility, but one reflecting "the limitations imposed by the scarcity, reduction and redistribution of the world's goods."

"It will fall upon this group of educated citizens," she maintained, "to shape new definitions of progress and success, and to teach a fresh understanding of self-fulfillment and self-sufficiency."

"You have been educated," Dr. McPherson continued, "in a place which understands that the purpose of true education is freedom — the liberation of minds from the confines of time and place, of the personal, of prejudice and cant; and which understands that it is important to value the freedom to question, to dispute, to stand outside a system, devise a new approach, suggest a better way. You have been given the tools of learning: what you do with these tools is now your very own exciting business."

Dr. McPherson warned of institutions and social structures "too long designed along narrow lines, failing to include the full strength of the people. It is clear," she said, "that our comfortable customs and attitudes, our usual socialization procedures, have resulted in a waste of human potential comparable perhaps to the misuse of the natural resources of this land which has resulted in a waste of its energy and its vast richness."

While noting some advances in women's education, she also noted "we are still not able to agree as a nation to respect the equal rights of Americans regardless of age, color, race, religion and sex. We have done a hundred years of talking about equal rights in this country — with your help, yours may be the time in which we finally stop talking."

Dr. McPherson concluded with a wish for the class to engage in this challenge of its time, refusing to settle for "anyone else's vision of you" and "leading your own life in light of your own vision, talents and interests."

Dr. John N. Stauffer, Juniata president, conferred Dr. McPherson's degree, citing her roles as "philosopher, teacher, respected dean and friend of students, and woman whose leadership holds great promise for American higher education. She brings to this era," he concluded, "the vital pioneering thrust that marked her distinguished college's beginning."

An honors graduate of Smith College, Dr. McPherson earned her masters degree from the University of Delaware and her Ph.D. from Bryn Mawr. She has served at Bryn Mawr since 1960 as an assistant, fellow, lecturer and later associate professor in philosophy, and since 1964 as dean of the freshman class, assistant, associate and dean of the college. In addition to guiding the academic and extra-curricular life of Bryn Mawr's 850 undergraduate students, she teaches a basic course in Greek philosophy and advanced work in her specialty, British Idealist Thought.

She is the first woman elected to the boards of the Greater Philadelphia Movement and the Provident National Bank of Philadelphia, and also serves on the boards of the Agnes Irwin School, the Shipley School, Phillips Exeter Academy, the International House of Philadelphia and the New Gulph Child Care Center.

In other Commencement-Reunion Weekend activity, detailed in other stories within this issue, the College awarded the honorary doctor of humane letters degree to Harold B. Brumbaugh, vice president for college relations, and the Beachley Distinguished Professorship to Dr. William E. Russey, professor of chemistry.

In addition, President Stauffer received a surprise tribute from the Class of 1975 for his "efforts on our behalf," Juniata received recognition as a Bicentennial Community, and a full program was warmly received at the annual Alumni Luncheon.

He's Still "H. B." But No Longer "Mister" Juniata

To his countless friends and admirers, young and older alike, he will always be "H.B.," but to those with an eye for detail, he's no longer "Mr. Juniata." As of commencement Sunday, June 1, Harold Bennett Brumbaugh is — if you please — Dr. Juniata.

A member of the Class of 1933 and currently vice president for college relations, Brumbaugh was awarded the honorary doctor of humane letters degree in an unannounced presentation. The "surprise" honor, which brought the commencement crowd to its feet in a standing ovation, was conferred by Dr. John N. Stauffer, the third Juniata president under whom Brumbaugh has served.

"Bearing a great name in Juniata's history," the degree citation read, "and otherwise known as Mr. Juniata, he has given forty years of singleminded dedication to his beloved alma mater, adding untold strength to her first century and helping to enhance the promise of her second."

Brumbaugh returned to Juniata in 1936, having taught briefly in his native Woodbury, Bedford County, and having served as principal of the high school in New Paris. He returned to the College as assistant to Dr. Charles C. Ellis, fifth Juniata president, and has since served under Drs. Calvert N. Ellis and Stauffer.

"H.B." plans to retire next year, but not before seeing the College through to her Centennial Anniversary.

In addition to his first and present positions, Brumbaugh has served as alumni secretary, director of development, and vice president for development at Juniata. He has also been the curator of the Juniata Museum since its establishment in 1963, and has, at one time or another, performed duties in publicity, placement and admissions.

He has hosted or co-hosted some 14 alumni tours through the years, and was instrumental in formation of the Juniata Passport Club. His "bachelor's pad" in the Tussey-Terrace residence hall, into which he moved from his picturesque quarters in The Cloister, serves as yet another "museum," reflecting in international arts and crafts both his taste and his travels throughout the world.

Beyond his direct involvement with the campus, Brumbaugh served as president of the Middle Atlantic District, American Alumni Council, from 1969-71, and was credited with establishing a counseling service for new Council members.

In 1963, further, he was cited by the AAC for "a quarter century of outstanding service to the cause of higher education and the advancement of alumni interest."

In church and civic affairs, Brumbaugh has served as chairman of the Commission on the Ministry, Church of the Brethren, and as president of the Middle Pennsylvania District Men's Fellowship and Men's Work Council. He has also been a member of the Pennsylvania State Council of Churches, and is active in the Stone Church of the Brethren.

Since 1973, he has been president of the Huntingdon County Tourist Promotion Agency, aiding in development of the new Raystown Lake among other projects. He is also a director and a past president of the County United Fund, a trustee of the County Library, a member of the County Historical Society and a past Rotary president.

A mere listing of titles and activities, however, can hardly reveal the essential "H.B." If anyone or anything can, a much more personal approach is needed, and such was offered at commencement by Elizabeth A. Ellis Cherry, then assistant professor of history. In presenting Brumbaugh for his honorary degree, Mrs. Cherry said, in part:

"For Harold, Juniata College has always meant people — Juniataians — and no single person has ever known more of them or worked harder to see that they were the institution — past, present and future.

"Conditions during the past five years have impressed many of us in this country with just how frail an organism a private liberal arts college can be. A school of the size and type of Juniata will not prosper simply because it can attract intelligent students, knowledgeable instructors and capable administrators. It needs all three, but it also needs, scattered among these groups and its alumni, certain individuals with a passionate devotion to the institution.

"Through her first century, Juniata has been fortunate in the extraordinary number of her faculty and staff who have regarded working for Juniata not just as an occupation, but rather as a sort of holy crusade. Even the most fanatic among them, though, have reserved the right to make some distinction between their private lives and their lives as members of the Juniata community.

"Harold Brumbaugh is the sole exception: he has found his apartments in Juniata's dormitories; he has regularly taken his meals in her dining halls; and he has spent his vacations shepherding her alumni around Europe, Asia and the South Seas. 'H.B.' stands as the highest example we have of devoted, effective service to the institution."

College Chosen As Bicentennial Community

Currently preparing for a dual observance next year — marking both its own 100th and the nation's 200th birthdays, Juniata has been selected as an official bicentennial community by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Dr. Wilfred G. Norris, provost, standing in for President Stauffer, was presented with an official bicentennial flag and certificate of bicentennial status at last month's annual Alumni Luncheon. David H. Steel of Huntingdon, area chairman for the ARBA made the presentation.

According to Dr. Norris, "We are most grateful that Juniata may relate its own historical observance to the nation's bicentennial. As Americans look back upon the growth and development of the nation's heritage and values, we too may review the College's growth, achievement and service as a free and independent institution aiding a free society.

"At the same time, the nation's concern with the present and future, with the continuity and contemporary validity of its fundamental ideals, is shared by Juniata. We face a challenge of our own: to continue our strength and usefulness in providing sound education for the future leaders of America."

Dr. Norris is also chairing Juniata's American Revolution Bicentennial Commission. Composed of faculty, students, administrators and trustees, the commission has listed among its early plans activities in three major areas: Heritage '76, Festival USA, and Horizons '76.

The first includes a new unit offering, "Forging A Nation," dealing with the culture, intellectual themes, and people of the Revolutionary era. The course will be taught by Elizabeth A. Ellis Cherry, associate professor of history.

The "Festival USA" plans call for a major cultural event — a music recital, art exhibit or both — developed for the College, Huntingdon County and the Borough, and designed to emphasize relations of the College to its wider environment.

In looking to "Horizons '76," finally, the College will turn to the Commission to Plan for Juniata's Future, chaired by Charles C. Ellis '40, trustee from New York City. Already engaged in a total review of the College's achievements since 1876, the commission is developing a comprehensive plan to insure Juniata's continued dedication to learning in a free society.

Dr. Russey Selected for Eighth Beachley Award

Dr. William E. Russey, professor of chemistry and a member of the faculty since 1966, received the eighth annual Beachley Distinguished Professor Award at commencement June 1.

Dr. Russey, said President Stauffer, who announced the unanimous selection, "has heavily invested wide-ranging intellectual and cultural interests, coupled with boundless energy, in teaching, counseling, research, departmental improvement, creative curricular development, and off-campus civic responsibility. He is devoted to Juniata's ideals and works diligently for their fulfillment."

The Beachley Award, established by Donovan R. Beachley, Sr. '21 and by Mr. and Mrs. Donovan R. Beachley, Jr. '47, all of Hagerstown, Md., provides a citation and a $1000 stipend. Nominations are invited from students, faculty, alumni and trustees, and selection is made by the president, provost, three most recent recipients and student government president.

Dr. Russey received his master's degree and Ph.D. from Harvard University and has studied as a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Bonn, Germany. He received the bachelor of science degree, magna cum laude, from Kalamazoo College in his native Michigan.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he has been a Woodrow Wilson Fellow, a National Science Foundation Fellow, and a National Institutes of Health Pre-Doctoral Fellow.

In addition, he was named by the NSF last year as a Faculty Fellow in Science Applied to Societal Problems and will spend the next academic year on sabbatical leave at the Max Planck Institute, Muhlheim-Ruhr, West Germany.

A member of the Huntingdon Borough Planning Commission, the Altoona Symphony Orchestra, and the Stone Church of the Brethren, Dr. Russey is married to the former Barbara Ann Lape and they have two daughters.

President Stauffer Paid Commencement Tribute

Dr. John N. Stauffer, who announced in March his plans to step down as president of the College, received an unscheduled tribute this month from the graduating class.

Seniors Jean L. Pollock and David G. Baer represented their classmates at commencement June 1 in making the presentation. Dr. John C. Baker, chairman of the Board of Trustees, interrupted the regular commencement program to introduce the students.

Miss Pollock noted that the recognition was "only a token of appreciation, for nothing we could do this afternoon could fully express our gratitude for your efforts on our behalf."

"You have insisted," she continued, "on student representation in administrative and faculty policymaking, and have been genuinely concerned about the intellectual and personal needs of Juniata's students."

"You have always found time," added Baer, "to attend to even individual student concerns, and your ideal of keeping in step with the times was important in development of the new Juniata curriculum, a program which has better prepared us to meet the challenges of today."

"We feel particularly close to President Stauffer," Baer concluded, "not only as the first class to study all four years within the new curriculum, but also because today is as much a commencement of a new chapter in his life as it is in ours."

Dr. Stauffer's resignation, which becomes effective upon the availability of his successor, noted recent and extensive cardiac examination, the results of which called for "substantial reduction of my present commitment" and "necessary restrictions in my daily activities." Dr. Stauffer, who cited both his "deep regret" and "the best interests of the College," has suffered from a heart condition since childhood.

While stepping down as president, however, Dr. Stauffer plans to continue serving Juniata, accepting "a lesser responsibility with corresponding decrease in work load and hours."

Dr. Baker, speaking for the Board of Trustees in accepting the resignation, said "The news has shocked and saddened us all. We recognize and deeply appreciate Dr. Stauffer's great contributions to the welfare of the College. He has had a brilliant career as a college president in critical times, first at Wittenberg University and, since 1968, at Juniata.

"As a Juniata graduate, he has wisely carried on cherished traditions, more than doubled the College endowment, strengthened in every way possible the faculty, effectively improved his administration by integrating efforts of faculty and students, and devoted long hours to planning Juniata's Centennial Observance in 1976.

"We sincerely hope, as we accept with regret Dr. Stauffer's resignation from the presidency, that he will continue for many years to serve the College in other less demanding capacities."

Both Dr. Stauffer and his wife, the former Marianne Louise Lee, received their degrees from Juniata in 1936. They are the parents of four children.

A native of Palmyra, Dr. Stauffer served as dean and later president of Wittenberg from 1947-68 before returning to his alma mater.

He received the master of arts degree in psychology from the University of Pennsylvania in 1942 and the doctor of education degree in counseling and higher education from the Pennsylvania State University in 1956. He has also studied at Harvard University and Ohio State University.

In his first professional position, Dr. Stauffer taught mathematics at the Milton Hershey School from 1936-43. He then spent single successive years as senior psychologist at the Pennsylvania Industrial School, Huntingdon, and director of the Counseling Service, YMCA of Hartford, Conn. From 1945-47, he was assistant director of the Veterans Guidance Center at Harvard.

Of his 21 years at Wittenberg, Dr. Stauffer served the first 10 as dean of students. From 1956-63 he was dean of the college, and from 1963-68 he was Wittenberg's ninth president.

Currently listed in Who's Who in America and American Men and Women of Science, Dr. Stauffer holds membership in a large and varied number of professional and civic organizations.

Among his more recent professional responsibilities, Dr. Stauffer has served since 1970 on the executive committee of the Commission for Independent Colleges and Universities in Pennsylvania, and has been its vice-chairman since 1973. He has been a member of the Government Relations Committee, Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities, since 1972, and has served since returning to Pennsylvania as chairman of evaluating teams for the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dr. Stauffer's many civic activities have included seats on the boards of trustees of several local organizations and he has served at the local, state and regional levels of the YMCA since 1956.

A past-president of Juniata's National Alumni Association, Dr. Stauffer was elected in 1967 to the College's Board of Trustees. He has also served on the Board of College Education of the Lutheran Church in America, and has been a trustee of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg.

In a letter to students, faculty and staff announcing his resignation, Dr. Stauffer looked forward "with hope and confidence to the future." He also explained "I shall welcome the opportunity for more frequent and direct contact with members of the college community," and expressed both his

In addition to the surprise tribute paid President Stauffer at Juniata's commencement this year, St. Francis College of nearby Loretto awarded Dr. Stauffer the honorary doctor of humanities degree at its own exercises May 11. The Rev. Sean M. Sullivan, T.O.R., president of St. Francis, conferred his colleague's degree, the only doctorate awarded.

Dr. Stauffer also delivered the commencement address at St. Francis, speaking of a college as "a model for life — as an independent spirit, a happy and dynamic balance of life and work, and an unfailing pursuit of self-understanding and self-renewal."

The occasion marked the third such honor for Dr. Stauffer, including his honorary doctor of laws degree from Juniata in 1964 and his doctor of humane letters degree from Wittenberg University in 1968.

and his wife's gratitude for their long associations with Juniata.

He added, finally, "As in each era of Juniata's history, there are on the horizon new and difficult problems to be solved. Along with these problems, however, there are also great opportunities to which trustees, alumni, faculty, students and other friends of the College have responded with the material, moral and intellectual support which a college must have in growing measure in order to function effectively.

"Today especially the independent liberal arts college needs our constant nurture and best effort. I am confident that under new leadership, our college will enter upon yet another period of great progress."

Presidents Robinson, Hassler Also Moving

Since Dr. Stauffer's announcement Mar. 8 of his plans to step down as president of the College, word has reached the Juniata campus that two additional alumni — Drs. Paul M. Robinson '35 and William W. Hassler '39 — have announced upcoming changes from similar presidential positions.

Dr. Robinson, who has also been a trustee at Juniata since 1959, will retire Oct. 1 from the presidency of Bethany Theological Seminary, Oak Brook, Ill., after 22 years. He will assume the pastorate of the Great Manor Church of the Brethren, South Bend, Ind.

Dr. Hassler, who became president of Indiana University of Pennsylvania in 1969, announced his resignation Apr. 1. He will, however, assume Hagerstown Church of the Brethren, Dr. Robinson became, in 1953, the fourth president of Bethany, the only graduate theological school of the Church of the Brethren.

Space restricts even the briefest mention of his many professional, church-related, and civic activities. He has, however, held numerous denominational offices, including, in 1955-56, that of moderator of the Church of the Brethren, the denomination's highest executive position.

Listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in Education, and Who's Who in the Middle West, Dr. Robinson is also nationally known as a lecturer and former editorial associate of The Pulpit, a well known preaching journal.

According to James H. Lehman '66, also a graduate of Bethany, "His years at Bethany have been the denouement of an altogether notable career. The new campus in Oak Brook, the construction of which came about largely through his initiative, is his most noticeable achievement, and the faculty he recruited will probably be remembered as his most important. To those who were students during his tenure, however, he will be remembered not only as a distinguished president, but as a large, friendly, ebullient man."

Dr. Hassler, a cum laude graduate in chemistry, received both his master's degree and Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. He had worked as a research chemist and a research consultant in industry, and had taught at Pennsylvania, Drexel Institute of Technology, Beaver College and Eastern Baptist College, before moving to IUP as dean of the School of Arts and Sciences in 1963. He became Indiana's fifteenth president six years later.

The holder of a process patent for making active carbon, he has authored numerous manuals and articles on various scientific topics. He has also gained widespread recognition, however, for numerous historical writings, including three Civil War biographies and a number of magazine and newspaper articles.

Dr. Hassler is listed in Who's Who in the East, American Men of Science, and Leaders of American Science, and received, in 1965, the Bronze Plaque Award of the Lincoln Civil War Society of Philadelphia.

another presidency this fall: that of Wesley College in Dover, Del., a Methodist-affiliated college of about 1000 students. He cited the combined problems of collective bargaining and limited state funds as his primary reason for making the move.

Dr. Robinson holds the bachelor of divinity degree from Princeton Theological Seminary and the master of sacred theology degree from the Lutheran Seminary of Mount Airy, Philadelphia. He has also received honorary doctoral degrees from Juniata and Bridgewater College.

AROUND CAMPUS WITH FACULTY AND STAFF

■ Seven members of the Juniata faculty were advanced in rank June 14 by action of the Board of Trustees. They were DR. WILLIAM E. RUSSEY, promoted to professor of chemistry; DR. RAY L. PFROGNER, associate professor of physics; ELIZABETH A. CHERRY, associate professor of history; DR. MICHAEL H. HARRISON, assistant professor of psychology; DR. PHILIP J. SIPLING, assistant professor of geology; SALLY ONDREJCAK, assistant professor of education; and CHARLES W. WISE, assistant professor of economics and business administration.

■ DR. EVELYN G. GUSS, I. Harvey Brumbaugh Professor of Classics and a member of the faculty since 1961, has been named assistant to the executive director of the Division for World Mission and Ecumenism, Lutheran Church in America. Her resignation from Juniata becomes effective July 1.

In 1973, Dr. Guss was commissioned by the Lutheran Church as a missionary-teacher, accepting a call as an English and cultural studies instructor at Birzeit College, Occupied Jordan. She returned to this country this spring. A graduate of Gettysburg College, she received both the master of arts degree and her Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh, and has also studied in Greece, Italy and Germany.

■ DR. DONALD T. HARTMAN, associate professor of philosophy and associate academic dean, has been named by the American Council on Education as a 1975-76 Fellow in the Academic Administration Internship Program. Selected as one of 40 Fellows from among some 180 applicants, Dr. Hartman will spend his nine-month internship principally on campus.

■ Dr. Hartman will also present a paper at the Fifth International Congress of Logic, Methodology and Philosophy of Science at the University of Western Ontario in August. In May, DR. KLAUS KIPPHAN, associate professor of history, spoke at the eighth annual Bloomsburg State College History Conference, while DR. JOSE C. NIETO, associate professor of religion, addressed the 10th Conference on Medieval Studies at Western Michigan University.

■ A salt-glazed pitcher by JACK G. TROY, part-time assistant professor of art, will be one of 120 pieces in the "Crafts Multiples" exhibit of the Renwick Gallery, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., which opens July 4 and will tour the country through 1978. Troy's piece was selected from among some 15,000 entries submitted by more than 2000 artists.

TROY, who is currently writing a book on salt-glazed ceramics, has also received a three-year appointment as chairman of the technical committee of the National Council for Education in the Ceramic Arts.

■ IBROOK TOWER, instructor in music, has been selected to participate in the College Band Directors' National Association Conducting Symposium, July 6-13 at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Frederic Fennel, founder of the Eastman Wind Ensemble, will direct the symposium.

■ CHARLES R. POLLOCK, who joined the staff as assistant to the director of public information last winter, has been appointed director of public information.

■ "Summertime Children," a record album accenting peace, non-violence and human values, has been created by REV. M. ANDREW MURRAY, instructor in religion and campus minister, and produced by the Church of the Brethren General Board. It includes nine songs, most of which were composed by Murray.

Recorded in Hendersonville, Tenn., the album features musicians from Nashville and children and adult singers from the Huntingdon area. "The Nashville performers were impressed with the fresh, upbeat flavor of Murray's music," commented Wilbur E. Brumbaugh, consultant for worship and the arts for the Church of the Brethren.

Murray's wife, TERRY, wrote the lyrics to one of the songs, and the performers include two new Juniata graduates, KIM HERSHBERGER MITCHELL '75 and MIRIAM R. SMITH '75.

AROUND CAMPUS WITH STUDENTS

■ For the third time in as many years, a Juniata student has been selected for the Research Participation Program in Science at the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y. KIMBERLY J. NORRIS '76, a biology major from Huntingdon, began the prestigious 10-week program June 16. STEPHEN M. SACHS '74 and GREGORY L. GRUBER '75, were the previous Juniata students chosen.

The Institute is considered one of the world's leading cancer treatment facilities, and the program is designed to provide intensive research experience, encourage creativity and help in planning careers.

■ MICHAEL A. TRIM '76, an English major from Cranford, N.J. concentrating in theatre arts, has been awarded one of five Film Observation grants by Warner Brothers Studios and the National Entertainment Conference. He will spend eight weeks this summer at the Burbank studios observing various phases of film production.

■ CYNTHIA J. GILBERT '76, a business administration major with an emphasis in computer science, will also be busy in her field this summer. The Folsom native has been selected for the 1975 Federal Summer Intern Program and will assist in the development and conduct of courses at the Management Sciences Training Center in the Bureau of Training, Washington, D.C. Upon her return to campus, according to the Intern Program design, she will serve as an "educator" by sharing her experience with students with similar interests.

■ A pair of senior biology majors, DAVID W. BECHTEL of Martinsburg and GREGORY L. GRUBER, East Petersburg, walked away with first-place and third-place honors, respectively, for papers presented to the Regional Conference of Beta Beta Beta, the national biology honor society, held in April at Western Maryland College.

■ ERIC B. HAUENSTEIN of Bellwood has been awarded the Richard M. Simpson Scholarship for a member of the class of 1979. Recognized for "outstanding attributes of citizenship, useful purpose and academic promise," he will enroll this fall as a pre-medical major.

■ Seventeen students — five juniors and 12 seniors — were recognized for outstanding academic achievement, leadership and citizenship at the annual Senior Convocation last month.

The juniors included BEVERLY A. BAUM, Elizabethtown, who received the Victor Kamkin Book Award for excellence in Russian studies, and the four winners of Charles C. Ellis Memorial Scholarships: CRAIG S. BRANDT, Lancaster, JANICE A. DIEHL and A. DAVID MINGLE, Roaring Spring, and RENEE D. DIEHL, Shippensburg.

The seniors, listed with their prizes, were: CAROL A. McFATE, Cochran, the Dow-Jones Co. Award for student achievement. RICHARD B. TADDONIO, Wallingford, ELAINE V. BECKER, York, BARRY M. SPECTOR, Clifton Heights, THOMAS C. PEARSON, Somerset, N.J., and GREGORY L. GRUBER, East Petersburg, the Andrew B. and Maria F. Brumbaugh Science Prizes.

LUANN STEINER, Malvern, the Alice G. Blaisdell Prize in Geology and Mathematics. KATHERINE A. APPLEBY, Mount Union, the John R. and Emma G. Wald Humanities Prize. JAYNE A. KEIRN, Altoona, the William S. Price Social Studies Prize.

MARLYN K. HOOVER, Red Lion, the Justina Marsteller Langdon Prize "to the senior woman who best exemplified the spirit of helpfulness to others, gentleness of character, and active participation in campus life."

DEBORAH A. SMITH, Abbottstown, the Wilbur W. Oaks Prize to a senior biology major having "a good academic record, a friendly and outgoing personality and broad cultural interest."

JEFFREY R. LONGENECKER, Paoli, the Charles M. Rice Accounting Prize.

AND VISITORS, TOO

Since the last regular issue of The Bulletin appeared, an unusually large number of distinguished guests have visited the campus in varied capacities for varied lengths of time. A brief sampling of the group might include:

■ DR. JOHN TEPPER MARLIN and ALICE TEPPER MARLIN, each a leading public interest economist, who spent the week of May 5 as Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellows. Dr. Pepper Marlin is president and executive director of the Council on Municipal Performance, a non-profit research group developing and publishing detailed reports of city effectiveness. Mrs. Pepper Marlin is the founder and executive director of the Council on Economic Priorities, another non-profit research group, also based in New York, dealing with social responsibility among American corporations.

■ DR. MARY CAROLINE RICHARDS, poet, potter and author, who spent the month of April as an Artist-in-Residence. Having taught at the famed Black Mountain (N.C.) experimental school, among numerous other institutions, she has also written two books, "Centering: In Pottery, Poetry and the Person" and "The Crossing Point," dealing with her unique interdisciplinary approach to creativity. She has also authored feature articles for crafts magazines, the libretto for a children's opera, and the English translation of Artaud's classic "The Theatre and Its Double."

■ DR. RUTH M. DAVIS, called in a recent magazine article "the conscience of computing," who spent several days as the 1975 Will Judy Lecturer. The director of the Institute for Computer Sciences and Technology of the National Bureau of Standards, she spoke of "You, the Computer and Our Society in the Next Two Decades." She has been active since 1962 in such fields of computer application as automation, robotics systems, information management, biomedical data gathering, and intelligence and reconnaissance operations.

■ LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR ERNEST P. KLINE of Pennsylvania, who spoke Apr. 10 of "what it means to be 'educated' in our society, and of the proper function of our schools."

■ DICK GREGORY, the famed black comedian more recently noted as "the world's foremost freelance humanitarian," who spoke May 10 about world hunger. He appeared as part of a two-week program devoted to the issues of peace and world hunger and sponsored by the Peace and Conflict Studies program at the College.

In addition to Gregory's address, the hunger program featured a "meal day" May 15, when students sold their rights to dinner to members of the Huntingdon community, with proceeds going to CROP, the international organization providing emergency hunger relief and teaching agricultural and nutritional skills.

■ JAN KADAR, co-director of "The Shop on Main Street," winner of the Academy Award for Best Foreign Film of 1965, who screened his new film, "The Blue Hotel" and spoke as part of a Juniata course in "The Cinema of Social Change."

Other friends at Bell included WILLIAM E. CARPENTER '52, directory supervisor-methods, and EDGAR "NED" SIMMONS, directory supervisor-sales and service. Simmons' son, J. SCOTT, is a member of the class of 1977.

Also included in the new directory is a brief explanation of the cover. It reads, in part: "The year 1976 will be a double birthday party in the Huntingdon area: America's Bicentennial and Juniata College's Centennial Celebration. The school's first classes were held in the spring of 1876 in one small room. Since then, the co-educational college has grown from one building, Founder's Hall, to 26 others, including the outstanding Brumbaugh Science Center. (Also pictured on the cover is the modern Oller Auditorium.) Offering a wide variety of courses, the college is also proud of its environmental studies and recreational opportunities."

RUTH E. RAUCH is now in her 20th year in the Philippines as a missionary nurse. She is administrator of the John Rauch Goodwill Memorial Hospital, a 30-bed facility established in 1970 and serving the indigent people of rural areas of the province of Kalinga.

1957

WILLIAM H. BURCHFIELD has been named vice-president, production planning and sales services, for Champion Papers, a division of Champion International.

1961

KARL A. SHREINER has been named general chairman of the 1975-76 Chambersburg area United Way Campaign. Secretary-treasurer of John C. McDowell & Sons, Inc., Shreiner had served as first vice-chairman of the effort last year. He resides with his wife, PATRICIA JANUSZ SHREINER '62 and sons, Kurt and Grant, at 25 Alcorn Circle, Chambersburg.

1962

DR. WILLIAM M. SAMUEL, instructor of ecology, parasitology, and wildlife disease at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Canada, returned to the Juniata campus May 5 to conduct two seminars. In addition, Dr. Samuel is the co-conservation editor of Bowhunter Magazine and currently serves as chairman of the information committee of the Canadian Wildlife Disease Association.

JAMES R. TUFANO, formerly principal of Upper Moreland High School in Willow Grove, Pa., is now the principal of Cheltenham High School in Wyncote. Jim and his wife, the former JEAN WHITTENBERGER '62, live near the Temple University Music Festival in Ambler with their children Carol (11), Jimmy (7) and John (3).

1964

ROLFE WENNER will be the new principal of the Hamden (Conn.) High School. He and his wife SARA COLBURNE WENNER '64 will be moving to Hamden late this summer.

1966

HAROLD A. HALL was promoted to staff programmer at IBM's Endicott Development Laboratory. In addition, he has been serving as chairman of the board of the Bonner Community Center in Endicott, N.Y.

1967

GLEN G. WURST, a doctoral candidate at the University of Pittsburgh, has accepted a professorial position at Allegheny College. Since 1971, he has been a teaching fellow in the department of biology at the University of Pittsburgh.

1968

DR. JOHN D. IRVIN made history this month at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, receiving both his M.D. and Ph.D. degrees at commencement. The honor marked the first time ever that two degrees were conferred simultaneously by Hahnemann. Dr. Irvin, who will serve as a resident at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, also won the department of physiology and biophysics prize for excellence. Co-author of numerous research papers, he will also be a senior instructor in Jefferson's department of neurosurgery and a visiting senior research instructor at Hahnemann. Dr. Irvin and his wife, Beverly, have one child and reside in Sicklerville, N.J.

1969

MARYELISE SUFFERN LAMET and her husband, Sterling, are returning to the United States after having spent the past two years in France and Holland doing research for their doctoral dissertations in 16th-Century social history. They will reside in Amherst, Mass., upon returning.

Margin of Difference Zeroing In On $10.1-Million Goal

Edwin L. Kennedy

Charles C. Ellis

Juniata's eight-year "Margin of Difference" development program, begun in 1968 and set to conclude next year, has moved to within less than $1.8 million of its $10.1-million goal.

Announcement of campaign progress, which includes both cash and pledged commitments of more than $8.3 million, was made this month by Charles C. Ellis of New York, senior vice president-finance, RCA, and general chairman of Juniata's three-year Centennial Fund.

The latter effort, which includes commitments of more than $3 million to date, is the third and final phase of the Margin of Difference program. Phases I and II, 1968-69 and 1970-72, received commitments totaling more than $5.3 million. Edwin L. Kennedy, a senior partner of Lehman Brothers, a New York investment firm, has been honorary chairman of the Margin of Difference for Phases II and III.

Ellis had chaired an earlier luncheon meeting, held on campus in May, attended by campaign leaders, by members of the Board of Trustees and President's Development Council, and by other key figures at the College.

President John N. Stauffer had also addressed the group, reviewing significant developments on campus since the Margin of Difference was begun. He noted, among other programs, substantial aid already provided in construction of Ellis Hall, development of Juniata's innovative curriculum, support of teaching, student aid and increased endowment.

Dr. Stauffer also pointed out that within the Margin of Difference years, Juniata's constituents have also met a second fiscal challenge: six Annual Support Funds, 1969-75, which had received commitments by the end of May of nearly $750,000. The combined Margin of Difference and Annual Support Fund figures, he has since noted, currently exceed $9 million.

THE MARGIN OF DIFFERENCE CAMPAIGN

— as of June 12, 1975

Goal: $10,100,000

SOURCE	PLEGGED
Trustees	$1,533,158.87
Alumni	1,491,143.36
Friends	408,975.86
Church of the Brethren	125,955.23
Juniata Parents Association	62,011.55
Foundations	1,666,123.16
Corporations and Industry	536,633.91
Students	35,389.00
Bequests	1,972,579.37
Government Grants and Research	482,169.00
Total	$8,314,139.31

Others reporting at the May leadership meeting were Dr. Thomas R. Miller of New York, vice president of Union Carbide Corp. and chairman of the Margin of Difference constituency campaign; Joseph R. Good of Hollidaysburg, former president of the Hollidaysburg Trust Co. and chairman of the trustee campaign; and LeRoy S. Maxwell, Sr., Waynesboro attorney and deferred gifts chairman.

Also, W. Clay Burkholder of Milroy, former executive director of the Tuscarora Intermediate Unit and chairman of the President's Development Council; and William E. Swigart, Jr., of Huntingdon, president of Mutual Benefit Insurance Co. and Select Risk Mutual Fire Insurance Co., vice president and secretary of Swigart Associates, Inc., and chairman of the Centennial Fund's Juniata Valley corporate gifts campaign.

Mrs. Shirley D. Lingenfelter of Roaring Spring, outgoing president of the National Alumni Association, also expressed appreciation for alumni contributions to the Margin of Difference campaign, which now total nearly $1.5 million.

Juniata Scores Again In Ph.D. Production Survey

For the second time within a year, a national survey has ranked Juniata among the leading colleges in the country in production of graduates who later earn doctoral degrees.

The latest survey, entitled "Ph.D. Production in the U.S.," was prepared by the Commission on Human Resources, National Research Council, The National Academy of Sciences.

The study listed Ph.D.'s in simple numbers earned, regardless of the size of the institution from which the student received his original degree, and was limited to private colleges and universities with primarily undergraduate programs.

From 1920-66, reported the NAS, Juniata produced 204 graduates who went on to receive Ph.D.'s in all fields, ranking the College 42nd in the nation and eighth in Pennsylvania.

In the physical sciences, the results were higher yet. From 1920-73, Juniata ranked 28th in the nation and seventh in the Commonwealth, graduating 110 students who would earn Ph.D.'s. And from 1968-73, the College moved up yet another notch to 27th nationally (eighth in Pennsylvania) with 27 eventual degrees.

The NAS survey follows on the heels of a study published last August in Science magazine. The earlier study, summarized in the September Bulletin, included all colleges and universities in the nation, ranking them by a weighted percentage of graduates earning scholarly degrees. For the survey period 1950-61, Juniata ranked 24th in the nation and fourth in Pennsylvania.

In neither study, however, do the totals include professional medical degrees (M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., etc.), which are earned in fields which many Juniata students traditionally enter quite regularly. Had professional degrees been reflected, it was noted in September, "the College's rating might be even higher."

Wenger Is New Alumni Council President

Kenneth J. Wenger '50, dean of admissions and financial aid at the University of Pittsburgh, is the new president of Juniata's National Alumni Council. He assumed his post May 31 at the annual Alumni Luncheon, held in Ellis Hall.

Completing a year as vice president, Wenger received the presidential gavel from Mrs. Shirley Detwiler Lingenfelter '55, substitute teacher and homemaker from Roaring Spring, who will remain on the executive committee for another year.

Succeeding Wenger as Council vice president is Richard L. Dodge '57, owner of the Dodge Insurance Agency, Harrisburg. By virtue of the Alumni Association constitution, Dodge is the Council's president-elect.

Another member of the Class of 1950, Lillian Raycroft Basher, will be one of three alumni representatives to Juniata's Board of Trustees. Self-employed as Lillian G. Raycroft, Attorney, State College, she will serve a three-year term on the board.

Wenger, director of admissions at Juniata from 1957-60, also served on the staff at Carnegie Institute of Technology for 11 years. He began at Pittsburgh in 1971, and holds a master's degree in education from New York University.

Dodge, former vice president of Byerly Insurance Agents and Brokers, Inc., is a member of the board of directors of the Harrisburg Independent Agents Association and treasurer of the Central Pennsylvania Sub-Contractors Association.

Mrs. Basher received her LL.B. degree from the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania. She has served as a local corporation counsel since 1969, and was a partner in the law firm of Litke, Gettig and Raycroft from 1960-64.

Six alumni were also recognized at the Luncheon as having been elected to three-year terms as Council members-at-large. They included Donald J. Coughenour '59, Morristown, N.J., manager, research and development, The Singer Co.; John M. Cramer '63, Pittsburgh, partner in the law firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw and McClay; and Jane Brumbaugh Gough '60, Upper Marlboro, Md., part-time instructor of English, U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration.

Also, Michael H. Long '71, Huntingdon, teacher at the Huntingdon Area High School; Thelma E. Morse '29, Bedford, retired teacher and librarian; and James J. Warfield '66, New York, personnel manager, Burmah Oil, Inc.

In other Luncheon activity, Charles C. Brown '59, Bellefonte attorney and Centre County district attorney, was honored with a captain's chair for service to the Council. Brown had preceded Mrs. Lingenfelter as president.

In addition, Dr. Miriam Schlegel Musselman, M. G. Brumbaugh Professor of Education, was recognized for 25 years at Juniata.

Also, Paul D. Fouse '31 and Stanley G. Stroup '25 received the Alumni Association Service and Achievement Awards, respectively (see April issue of The Bulletin), and President John N. Stauffer delivered the annual State of the College address.

Dr. and Mrs. Calvert N. Ellis, finally, president emeritus and former first lady of the College, were honored with a surprise Council President's Award "for their tireless efforts in behalf of Juniata College." In addition to an oral tribute, the Ellis' received an original oil painting depicting a number of their many interests and ties to Juniata.

1976 CHOIR TOUR

The much-travelled Juniata Concert Choir, directed by Bruce A. Hirsch, associate professor of music, will make its annual concert tour March 2-9 in 1976.

For the College's Centennial Year, the choir hopes to focus the tour in the western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio areas, having travelled through the central and eastern portions of the Commonwealth its last time out.

Anyone interested in serving as a host and arranging for a tour engagement may contact David A. Kreider, assistant director of development and alumni affairs.

Fifteen Honored With Indian All-Sports Awards

Fifteen Indian athletes, including a dozen most valuable players in 11 varsity sports, were honored last month at the annual All-Sports Awards Presentation held in Ellis Hall.

J. Richard Nedimyer, a history major from Altoona, collected the 29th Stanford Mickle Award, considered the highest athletic honor accorded on College Hill. A four-year letterman in track, three-year letterman in football, and former student intramural director, he was deemed "that man of the graduating class who, like Stanford Mickle, loved athletics, participated in and manifested a wholesome interest in sports, and contributed to the promotion of athletics at Juniata College."

A hurdler, Nedimyer finished his senior season as the Indians' second-leading scorer. He captured a third in the intermediate hurdles at the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships, and lowered his time during the season to 56.0 — an improvement of nearly three seconds. He also ran on the Tribe mile relay team.

William R. Kibler, Jr., an English and philosophy major from Springfield, took home the John E. Blood Memorial Award, given to that senior who, having earned at least three varsity letters, maintained the highest academic average. Kibler earned four letters each in track and cross country.

In addition, Keith S. Colonna, a four-year letterman in football from Aliquippa, received a Special Dedication Award, provided by President John N. Stauffer upon recommendation of the athletic department. Colonna had started at safety for most of his freshman and all of his sophomore and junior years, yet failed to earn a regular's job last season.

According to head coach Walt Nadzak, "Despite losing his job, Keith displayed a special kind of loyalty to and understanding of what athletics really mean. His exemplary attendance and hard work at practice, his public support of the coaches' decisions, and his genuine concern for the welfare of the team made him more than deserving of the award," which was last presented in 1973 to grinder Don Mastrorocco and cager Kevin King.

Twelve other athletes — nine men and three women — were cited for Alumni Awards as varsity MVPs. Of the 12, seven were seniors, three juniors, and two sophomores. Listed by season with donors and sports, they were:

- Carmen DeFrancesco, senior tailback, Mt. Carmel, Dr. J. Harold Engle '23, football back.
- Peter Lentini, senior tight end, Kulpmont, George Weber '40, football lineman.
- Jack McCullough, junior, Willow Grove, C. Clifford Brown, Sr. '29, cross country.
- LuAnn Steiner, senior forward, Malvern, Thomas B. Robinson '66, field hockey.
- Donnie Williams, junior forward, Pittsburgh, Jack Oller '23, basketball.
- Susan Rosshirt, senior guard, Rising Sun, Md., Gayle W. and David A. Kreider '68, '71, women's basketball.
- Steve Harper, sophomore, Clearfield, David L. Helsel '61, wrestling.
- Tom Streightiff, senior centerfielder, Huntingdon, Charles Goodale '39, baseball.
- Mike Slough, senior, Hummelstown, J. Foster Gehrett '16, track.
- Jay Endres, senior, Lewisburg, C. Blair Miller '49, golf.
- Gavin Ford, junior, Felicity, O., Calvert N. Ellis '23, tennis.
- Alice Herritt, sophomore, Williamsport, J. M. Haskell '66, women's tennis.

In terms of team performance this year, the fall was again the most productive season on College Hill. With the gridders finishing 7-2, the harriers setting a new win record at 9-2, and the field hockey team coming in at 2-4, the autumn mark at Juniata was a hefty 18-8.

Despite the strides made by new cage coaches Carl Meditch and Ed Gargula, however, the winter teams finished at 22-30. Meditch's men were 13-12, bouncing back from a three-year overall mark of 16-52, while Gargula's women were 8-5. The Indian grapplers, plagued by injuries and inexperience, were 1-13.

On the recently-completed spring scene, the five-team mark was 24-32, with the track and men's tennis squads leading the way, each at 6-3.

Overall, then, the Indian men were 51-59, the women 13-11, giving Juniata a 64-70 record for the year.

Fred Prender Is Dead

Fred W. Prender, Juniata's 12th football coach from 1963 to 1968, baseball coach in 1964 and 1965, and athletic director from 1965 to 1969, died of a heart attack Apr. 8 in Lewisburg. Coach Prender, who had held the grid reins at Bucknell University since leaving College Hill, was 43 years old.

A 1954 graduate of West Chester State, he was, in the words of Mailand McIlroy, long-time friend and sports editor of Huntingdon's Daily News, "among the best who ever wore the Purple and Gold." Prender was buried in West Chester, not far from the school at which he became a Little All-American halfback, lettered four times in baseball, and played two years of basketball. His daughter, Peggy Jane, is now a West Chester student. He is also survived by his wife, Fran, and his parents and a sister.

Prender coached baseball and basketball one year at Wiconisco High School in Lykens before a four-year football stay at Bristol. After serving as offensive backfield coach at Bucknell for another four years, he came to Juniata.

"Prender was a tireless worker in football season," says McIlroy, "arriving early at his desk and toiling until late at night. He was especially adept at breaking down the film of an opponent, exposing weaknesses that often meant the difference between victory and defeat Saturday afternoon. He thrived on details."

At Juniata, Prender logged a six-year record of 30-19, including successive 7-1 and 7-2 seasons in his final two campaigns. "His teams played exciting football, putting the ball in the air often and exploiting the material on hand."

In eulogizing Prender, Ronald J. Pedrick, director of university relations at Bucknell, asked "How did he play the game?" Pedrick answered, "He believed within the very inch of his life in the simple virtues. He was not a complicated man. He was warm and open; he knew love, and he had a very high regard for morality, integrity, loyalty, truth and honesty. It was in this spirit and this tradition of competition and friendship that he played the game."

McIlroy, finally, remembers Prender as one who "didn't leave all his energy on the football field. He was an avid golfer, an excellent bridge player and enjoyed a good evening with friends. His warm laughter was infectious.

"A devoted family man with a love for antiques and German Shepherds, Prender lived a very full 43 years. He will be missed."

Head football coach Walt Nadzak, right, recently announced the election of seniors Steve Lehman, front, and Charlie Zorger and Barry Hartley as Tribe captains for 1975.

J. Omar Good Professorship Established; Internationally Known Theologian Named

Dr. C. Samuel Calian, internationally known theologian and author, has been named the first J. Omar Good Visiting Distinguished Professor of Evangelical Christianity at Juniata. President John N. Stauffer announced both Dr. Calian's appointment and the establishment of the professorship Apr. 17.

According to Dr. Stauffer, the new chair has been established with a bequest from the late J. Omar Good, a Juniata student in the mid-1890s. A Philadelphia printing executive, Mr. Good died in 1969 at the age of 92. His will provided $1 million for Juniata, the largest gift ever made to the college.

In addition, Mr. Good provided several smaller bequests, one of which now endows the chair. The trustees of the estate, Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Rosenberger of Narberth, Pa., determined that a chair be established in keeping with a stipulation of the will, which required that Mr. Good's residual funds be used for "the perpetuation of the Historical Triune Faith of Protestant Christianity."

The Rosenbergers determined, further, that the chair should be established at Juniata.

As the new position is a "visiting professorship," explains Dr. Stauffer, appointments will be made from year to year with a limit of five years for any single incumbent. The occupants will be "recognized authorities in the field of evangelical theology and its allied or related disciplines, distinguished scholars able to present and interpret systematically Biblical theology, the heritage of the Protestant trinitarian position, and the heritage of the Reformation."

The J. Omar Good Professor will teach a course each term, take part in seminars and panel discussions, and present lectures open to both the college community and general public. As far as his time permits, he will also be available for off-campus lectures.

In commenting upon the establishment of the chair, Dr. Calian observed "It is a timely response to the identity crisis felt today by many Christians."

Dr. Calian, who spoke at Juniata this winter, is currently professor of theology at the University of Dubuque Theological Seminary, where he has served on the faculty since 1963. Ordained by the United Presbyterian Church, he has authored six books and more than 100 articles and reviews.

Among the books, the most recent is The Gospel According to the Wall Street Journal, a paper to which Dr. Calian contributes. Others include Grace, Guts and Goods: How to Stay Christian in an Affluent Society, Icon and Pulpit: The Protestant-Orthodox Encounter, and Berdyaev's Philosophy of Hope: A Contribution to Marxist-Christian Dialogue.

Dr. Calian's major fields of interest are reformed theology and ethics, ecumenical and contemporary religious thought, Eastern Orthodox cultures and histories, and Byzantine and Middle East studies.

A 1955 graduate of Occidental College, Dr. Calian also earned the B.D. degree from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1958. He received the doctor of theology degree magna cum laude from the University of Basel in 1962.

He has also studied at the Jung Institute of Analytical Research in Zurich, the Graduate Institute for International Studies in Geneva, the Institute for Applied Psychological Behavior in Bethel, Me., the Harvard Business School, and the Ecumenical Institute of the World Council of Churches in Bossey, Switzerland.

Dr. Calian is listed in numerous directories of American and international scholars and leaders, and has travelled extensively throughout the U.S., Europe and the Middle East. He is married to the former Doris Zobian and they have three children.
